JDBC PreparedStatement performance tips

Java performance tuning tips relevant for tuning JDBC usage. The top tips are: Use prepared statements. Use parametrized SQL. Tune the SQL to minimize the data returned (e.g. not 'SELECT *').

JDBC performance tips

The training includes good details on indexing for performance tuning. It would be even better if it covered other performance factors like statistics, temp db, data file configuration, logs etc.

The optimization, sometimes performed automatically by an optimizing compiler, is to select a method that is more computationally efficient, while retaining the same functionality. See algorithmic efficiency for a discussion of some of these techniques. However, a significant improvement in performance can often be achieved by removing extraneous functionality.

The SQL LIKE operator very often causes unexpected performance behavior because some search terms prevent efficient index usage. That means that there are search terms that can be indexed very well, but others can not. It is the position of the wild card characters that makes all the difference.

Ionophores improve feed efficiency by acting on rumen microbes. Most rumen microbes convert the complex fiber and starch in forage and grain into simple molecules that can be absorbed into the bloodstream to provide energy and protein to the animal.
